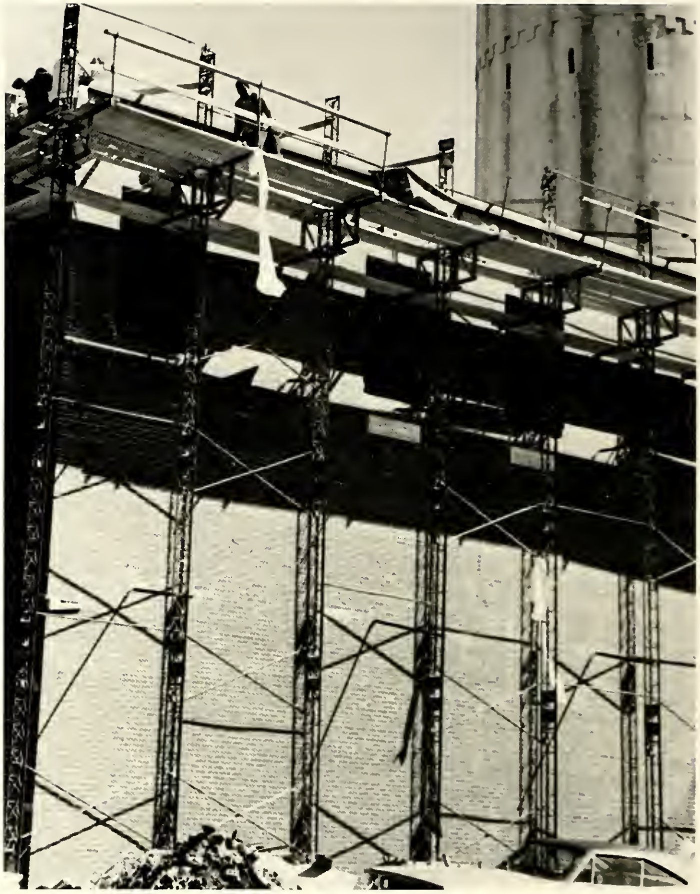
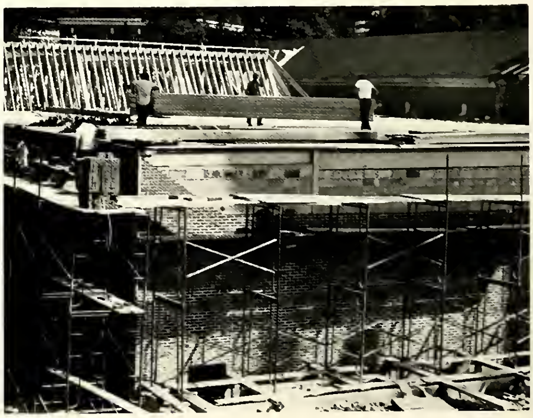
Changes . . .





. . . from the Bottom . . .

. . . to the Top

Whether new beginnings or renewing of something once begun, things are happening on the U.M. campus. The excitement of growth fills the air. However, often it is necessary to tear down in order to build up. For, as Benjamin Disraeli said, "Change is inevitable (on) a progressive (campus). Change is constant."

"IT'S A RAINY DAY IN MONTEVALLO,
AND I FEEL LIKE IT'S RAINING ALL OVER THE WORLD.

Pulling your body out of bed on those dreary rainy days is tough. It's even tougher getting around without an umbrella. However, sometimes your own umbrella turns against you.

Montevallo has to be the only non-port city that has monsoons! But there is one good thing about rain, no two: the multicolored umbrellas brighten the campus, and rain brings rainbows.

Lazy Moments . . .

Flowerhill
RESIDENCE

DRIVE SLOWLY — FUTURE ALUMNI MAY BE AT PLAY!

Whether it is ''hanging'' around Flowerhill, tossing a frisbee on the quad, or just sitting around on campus, these free times have to be worked for. It seems the only lazy moments are those during the first few days of registration before classes begin. Of course there are those times in spring when students call their own special ''holidays.''

. . . ''few and far between''

"They tell you that the darkness
is a blessing in disguise;
For you never have to notice
if you're sighted or you're blind.
And they'll do their best to keep you from the light . . . ."

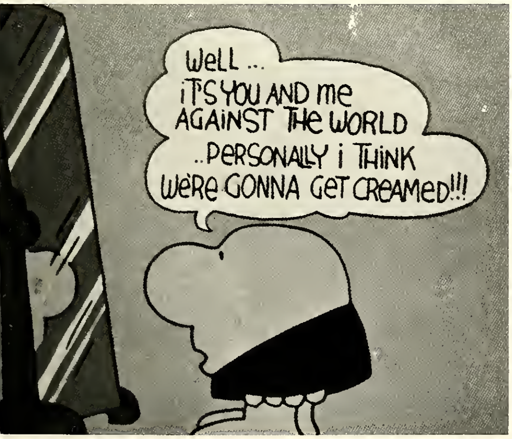
Janis Ian

BAD DAYS — THEY ARE INEVITABLE.

LIQUID PAPER



WeLL ... iT'S YOU AND me AGAiNST THe WORLD ..PeRSONALLY i THiNK WeRe GONNA GeT CReAMeD!!!

Bad days seem to come no matter what you do to avoid them. You know one is coming when you yell at the alarm clock for a rude awakening. Then things just go haywire the rest of the day.

Bad days include . . .

. . . losing your books in the cafeteria.
. . . walking into class late . . . the wrong class!
. . . trying to stay awake during a boring lecture.
. . . writing a term paper the day before it's due.
. . . dropping your books in front of everyone.
. . . using Liquid Paper fifteen times on the same page.
. . . getting to the cafeteria when everyone else does.
. . . forgetting room inspection.
. . . losing your last quarter in the Coke machine.

STYLESTYLESTYLES

Flip-Flops hit the "fashion" scene on campus last spring with a big splash of color, styles, and heights. These thong sandals gave anyone the opportunity to be sloppy, yet versatile! But as cooler weather approached this year, the sandals gave in to gauchos and knee boots. This combination ranges from denim gauchos and casual, chunky boots to dressy gauchos and sleek leather boots. Tee shirts are even popular with guys and girls. The shirts' messages vary from simple advertisements of records or singing stars to sensuous sayings.

STYLESTYLESTYLES

AFTERNOON DELIGHT

CAMPUS CHANGES

COMBINATION LOCKS REPLACE LI$TS

If you were to drive by the girls' dorms after 12:00 p.m., you would notice there are no longer small groups waiting and shivering in a huddle by the front door of the dorms to get in. This has long passed. The combination locks eliminated curfews, a late list, and late penalties. There is only one catch to these locks: you have to remember the three-number combination, every time it is changed.

CAMPUS CHANGES

LOCKED IN . . . OR OUT

In the past, the gates of UM have been locked tight by midnight. This system of safety, however, was rather inconvenient. Any student driving up to the campus would have to find a cop in order to get inside the gates. But now at least two gates stay open all night.

One thing is not clear. Was this method of safety devised to keep "evil" off our campus or to keep our "evil" on the campus? Will we ever know?!?

CAMPUS CHANGES

HAVEN'T THEY HEARD?!

The tradition of "no purse" is changing. Even into the fifth week of classes, many freshmen were still taking their purses to classes and to the cafeteria. Maybe no one of the "upper class" has bestowed upon them the knowledge that a thoroughly oriented UM student does not carry a purse in public!!!

CAMPUS CHANGES

MALE VISITATION INCREASED

It no longer happens only on weekends! Male visitation that is. Last year, visitation was restricted to weekends, but after giving the dorms an opportunity to increase visitation, the times have been extended to Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1:00 to 5:00. After achieving this bit of liberty, many students started pushing for more days. The SGA quickly picked up on this and a bill was passed which will increase visitation to seven days a week with hours of 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. to 12 midnight. Of course this is subject to a ⅔ majority vote of the residents in each dorm.

SENIOR MARCH

The sounding of the death march on the campus chimes at midnight, the beating of a bass drum, and the screaming of lowerclassmen signal . . . SR. MARCH!!

Each year the seniors march on the freshmen once and then the other upperclassmen. But there is one way to keep the seniors from marching: Underclassmen can find and steal the well hidden Crook. The seniors then have to find it before they can march.

This year a little excitement was added to Sr. March. Some juniors found the Crook. But oh, how bad it was for those certain juniors the night of march.

Even through all the shaving cream, food, and eggs, the marchees and marchers have a ball.

FOUNDER'S DAY

October 12, 1977

The past was very much a part of the present. The swishing of gowns signaled the beginning of the processional. Members of the audience could sense the excitement in the air. This was an important day for the people in Palmer Auditorium. Not only was the University's eighty-first year being celebrated, but also the inauguration of the eleventh president, Dr. James F. Vickrey, Jr. was taking place.

The activities of the day began with a Founder's Day Breakfast, which was followed by the Inaugural Convocation. Then a luncheon was served on the grounds. The activities of the afternoon were a program, concert, and the President's reception. After an evening symposium on "The Future of the University" the evening was brought to an end by an Inaugural Ball.

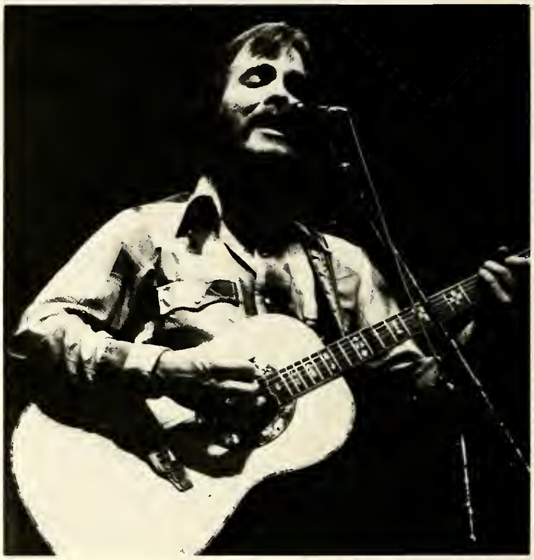
PERFORMING LIVE

Recording star B. J. Thomas, performing "live" in Palmer auditorium, brought in a sell-out crowd as the SGA entertainment council's first concert booking of the year. Including such hits as "Hooked on a Feeling" and "Raindrops Keep Falling on my Head," as well as his newest top forty venture, "Don't Worry Baby," Thomas' concert was a sample of the distinctive singing style that has kept his popularity alive for over ten years. Thomas' closing numbers were selections from his album "Home Where I Belong," showing his expansion into the field of contemporary Christian music.

The concert's headlining group was Meisburg and Walters, an energetic young singing duo with a country-folk sound that initiated enthusiastic audience response.

homas' charismatic personality was in evidence throughout the oncert.

anjo and guitar in hand, the country music overtones of Meisburg nd Walters, below, were a pleasing contrast to the polished sound f Thomas.



Larry Lee, one of the three guitarists of the group, also provides vocal back-up.

PERFORMING LIVE

Rock and roll, "daredevil" style, was the drawing card for students when the Ozark Mountain Daredevils visited Montevallo as the second SGA concert presentation of the year. Ranging from the country-like rowdiness of songs like "Chicken Train:" to the near ballads such as "Jackie Blue," the Daredevils proved that their rock and roll was as diverse as their music talent.

Danny Cox, singer and guitarist touring with the Daredevils, provided a popular warm-up act with his rich and mellow deep blues style.

Caught in a direct spotlight beam, pianist Ruell Chappel faces a packed auditorium.

On stage in Palmer Hall, the Ozark Mountain Daredevils swing into their opening number.

PERFORMING LIVE

A native of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, lead vocalist John Townsend, above, adds to the style of the group with his outstanding singing ability.

Though relatively new to the popular recording scene, the Sanford and Townsend Band proved their musical ability to Montevallo students with their successful concert in Palmer auditorium. The outstanding vocals, lead and back-up, along with the keyboard artistry of Ed Sanford and the blistering saxophone of Otis Hale give the group a style that's all its own. Crowd favorites at the concert included the band's hit single "Smoke from a Distant Fire," as well as two numbers off their debut album, "Does it Have to be You" and "Shake it to the Left."

Providing flavor and humor to their show with vigorous facial and body expression, Ed Sanford, left, is a native Alabamian from Montgomery.

The Winters Brothers, below, were the warm-up group for the concert.

Delightful characterizations were the key to comedy in the UM Theatre production of "Arsenic and Old Lace." Two endearing old maid aunts who poison lonely old men as an "act of mercy," their brother, an elderly bachelor with a Teddy Roosevelt fixation who sees the staircase as San Juan Hill, and another brother who returns home after many years with a face like Boris Carloff and a disposition to match were among the hilarious roles that the cast brought to life on stage. A most attractive as well as functional set added to the talented performances of the whole cast.

Jonathan Brewster portrayed by Scot Copeland, and his sidekick Dr. Einstein, portrayed by Capers Doss, left, plot a blackmail scheme to insure use of the Brewster home as a center of operations for their shady business activities.

Arsenic...

Mortimer Brewster, played by Darrell Revel, left, is horrified to discover his aunts "acts of mercy."

Actors Greg Babb and David Briggs, above, confront each other in their roles as Teddy Brewster and Lt. Rooney.

...and Old Lace

Maiden aunts Abby and Martha Brewster, portrayed by Peggy Cardin and Sally Smith, eye a potential "victim."

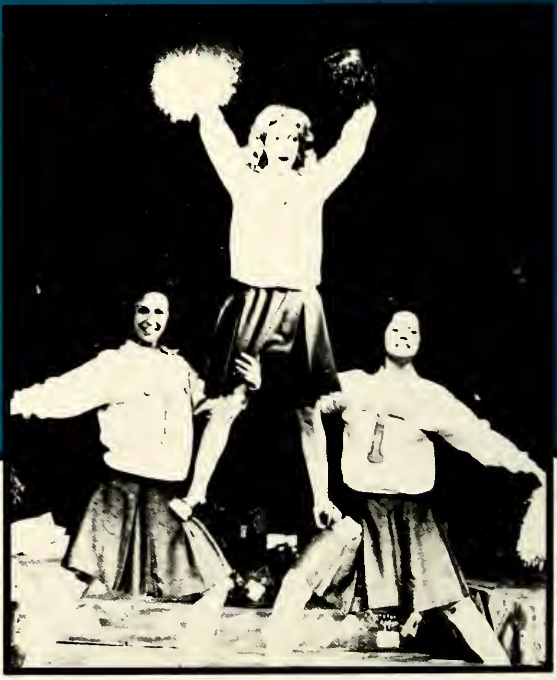
Never seen on stage during the play itself, the aunts' victims, portrayed by various faculty members, take their bows.

On-stage vanities equipped for all make-up and costume changes, below, were a special feature of the Vanities set.

Act I shows the characters as high school seniors, all three cheerleaders, below right, and all three best friends.

Opposite page — Joanne, portrayed by guest actress Saundra Daniel, retains much of her earlier enthusiasm and naivety to the cynical amusement of her two more worldly friends as Act II shows the three girls as sorority sisters facing college graduation.

Cast portrait — Saundra Daniel, Rene Dunshee, and Greta Lambert.



Unique is just not a strong enough word to describe the UM Theatre production of "Vanities" by Jack Heifner. The entire cast of this three act play consists of only three actresses who never leave the stage throughout the whole play. All costume, make-up, and scenery changes are done by the actresses themselves. Highlighting the set are three vanities where no action in the play takes place, but where the audience sees each actress take on the character of the role she is portraying, and is able to respond more fully to the moving story of the changes three high school seniors undergo in the following ten years.

Vanities is the University of Montevallo's entry in the American College Theatre Festival. In competition on the state level, the production was chosen to go to regionals where the three cast members tied three ways for Best Actress in the Regional competition.

Circus Pinochio

Audience participation, puppets, acrobatics, and a "nose that really grows" were all a part of the UM Experimental Series production of "Circus Pinochio." Adapted from Colodis' "Pinochio" by student director Scot Copeland, this unique children's comedy was presented throughout the state by a five member troup of lively student actors.

In a scene from the play, Randy Stewart, above right, is stuffed into a sack by two villainous looking characters, Julie Burke and Donald Hill.

The cast included Scot Copeland, Julie Burke, Randy Stewart, and Donald Hill, right.

ORCHESIS

"Dance . . . And Follow Thru" provided the theme for the annual production of UM's creative dance group, Orchesis. From a Druid dance celebration of the sun to currently popular musical scores, from a classic poetic love ballet to humorous interpretations of a circus and a horse race, the Orchesis group proved its diversity in "the beauty of dance, the pleasure of movement, and the joy of sharing."

Dance...
And Follow
Thru.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

With student and faculty recitals, musical scenes, one-act operas, not to mention choir and band concerts, there's always something going on at the music building. Required attendance of music majors to all these events insures an audience for the less publicized events, while for most programs, the concert hall is filled to the brim with an enthusiastic audience.

Dr. Betty Lumby and Dr. John Owen, right, perform at a faculty recital.

Simple sets added to the performances of several one act operas. Below is a scene from the opera "Down in the Valley."

The chamber choir, under the direction of Dr. Theodore Pritchett, above, stand in concert position in preparation for a performance.

Dr. Middaugh, left, performs in a scene from the opera, "The Sorcerer."

The guest Artist series included a trombone specialist, below.

CHRISTMAS AT MONTEVALLO

In spite of finals, term papers, nerve attacks, and sleepless nights that are a part of December at Montevallo, the Christmas spirit still finds its way into the students' frantic schedules. Every club has its party, every society has its service project, each dorm has its own celebration, and then there are always those impromptu moments that occur on the spur of the moment, like a male choir of carollers serenading the women's dorms at midnight for four days straight, or like the study breaks that turn into hall decorating parties. The foreign language department hosts a musical program featuring Christmas carols sung in Spanish, Latin, French, and German. Boiled shrimp, ham, and roast beef, not to mention a luscious salad bar, enticed students into the cafeteria for the annual Christmas buffet. Entertainment was provided by the SGA.

ELITE NIGHT DEDICATION
DR. MIGUEL A. GUITART

This year Elite Night was dedicated to Dr. Miguel A. Guitart. Dr. Guitart teaches Mathematics here at the University. Outside of being a teacher, Dr. Guitart is a composer of Cuban and North-American folk-lores. At the end of this semester Dr. Guitart will be retiring. We would like to take this opportunity to say, "Thank-you Dr. Guitart, it's been a pleasure."

ELITE NIGHT has been a UM tradition since 1933. It is that time when outstanding UM students receive recognition.

COLLEGE NIGHT—STEP ONE

"It's the most complicated, yet exciting way of celebrating homecoming that ever existed."

"It's a chance to get involved with something, to meet new people, and to feel a part of something worthwhile."

"It's a con game, plain and simple — one gigantic rip-off."

"It's the biggest and best thing that happens at Montevallo."

College Night is many things to many people, and evokes mixed feelings and a variety of comments. To come up with a precise definition of it is impossible; to try to describe it is futile; to try to attempt to fully explain it is a time-consuming job. It combines the thrill of competition, the glamour and glitter of the theatre, the excitement of athletics, the tradition of homecoming, and the fulfillment of artistic expression. Add these up, and perhaps a small part of what College Night is becomes clear. The only way to understand it is to experience it for yourself. There is one thing, though, concerning College Night that can be stated with certainty: College Night is unique tradition that is a true distinction for the students at Montevallo.

Step one in College Night activity involves choosing leaders and making plans. As early as October, two leaders for each side are selected by student vote. In turn, the newly elected leaders distribute responsibility among twenty-five handpicked cabinet members for each side. Before the fall semester has ended, committees are formed, flunkies and cowtails chosen, cheerleaders are selected, and scripts are voted on.

Chosen by the members of each side, it is the responsibility of the leaders to organize and promote their side. GOLD LEADERS: Mike Bynum, Phyllis Evans. PURPLE LEADERS: Doug Brom, Terri Drinkard.

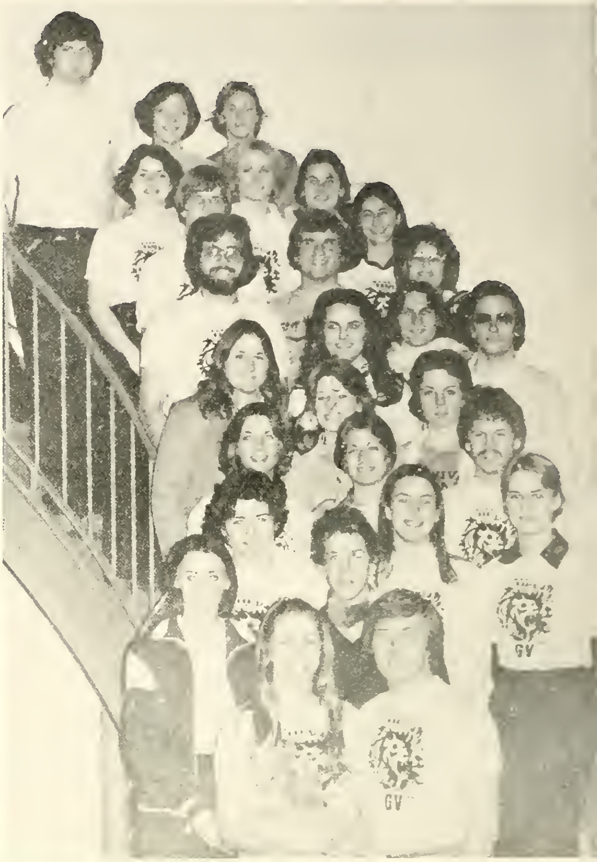
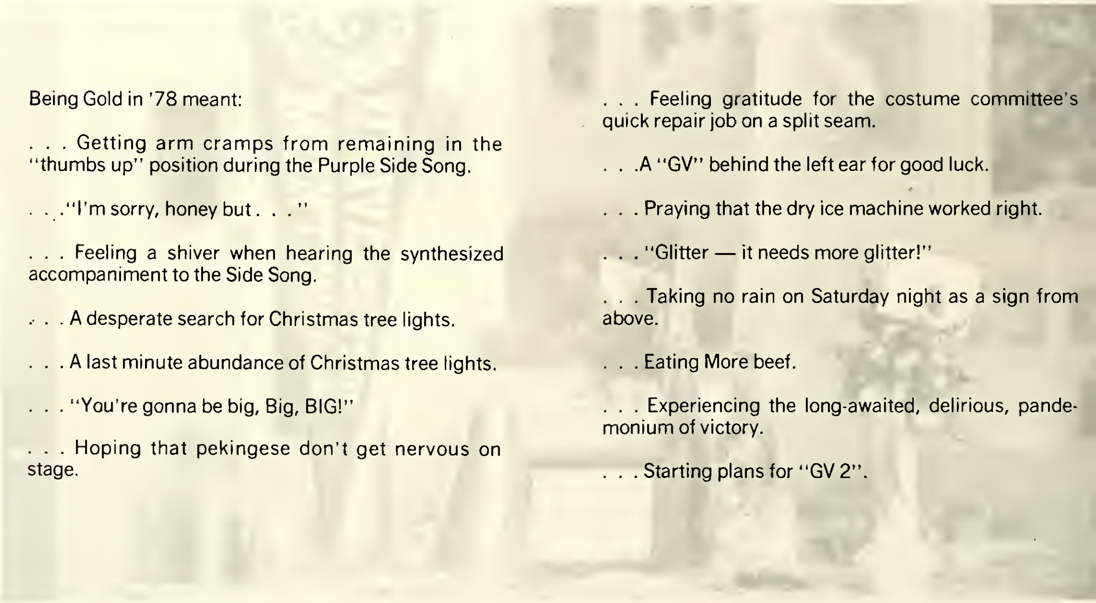
GOLD CABINET: Front row: Phyllis Evans, Leader; Mike Bynum, Leader. 2nd row: Tricia Corbett, Leaders' Assistant; Capers Doss, Director. 3rd row: Sandra Smith, Publicity; Leigh Allen, Costumes; Winnet Havens, Costume Assistant. 4th row: Julee Knox, Head Flunkie; Robin Lysiger Lysinger, Flunkie Assistant; Warren Betts, Choreography. 5th row: Nedra Smith, Book; Carol Bonfield, Art. 6th row: Laura Hayes, Stage Manager; Chris Crawford, Assistant Stage Manager; Randy Stewart, Scenic Art; Billy Cox, Business Manager. 7th row: Bobby Zarzour, Technical Director; Butch Belcher, Staging; Jennie Ford, Lighting. 8th row: Mike Williams, Safety; Joy McDonald, Tickets. 9th row: Martha Phillips, Props; Donna Thompson, Spirit; Beth McDonald, Spirit Assistant. 10th row: James Carr, Music; Margaret Moates, Typing; Karen Nelson, Womens' Athletics. Not pictured: Jack Wooten, Set Design; Bruce Thomas, Athletics; Kak Foster, Make-up.



The decision of which side to support is left to the discretion of each individual's Friends, family, and even color preference are the main influences for some students. For others, it is the essential nature of the sides themselves that determines their decision.



Being Gold in '78 meant:

. . . Getting arm cramps from remaining in the "thumbs up" position during the Purple Side Song.

. . ."I'm sorry, honey but . . ."

. . . Feeling a shiver when hearing the synthesized accompaniment to the Side Song.

. . . A desperate search for Christmas tree lights.

. . . A last minute abundance of Christmas tree lights.

. . . "You're gonna be big, Big, BIG!"

. . . Hoping that pekingese don't get nervous on stage.

. . . Feeling gratitude for the costume committee's quick repair job on a split seam.

. . . Praying that the dry ice machine worked right.

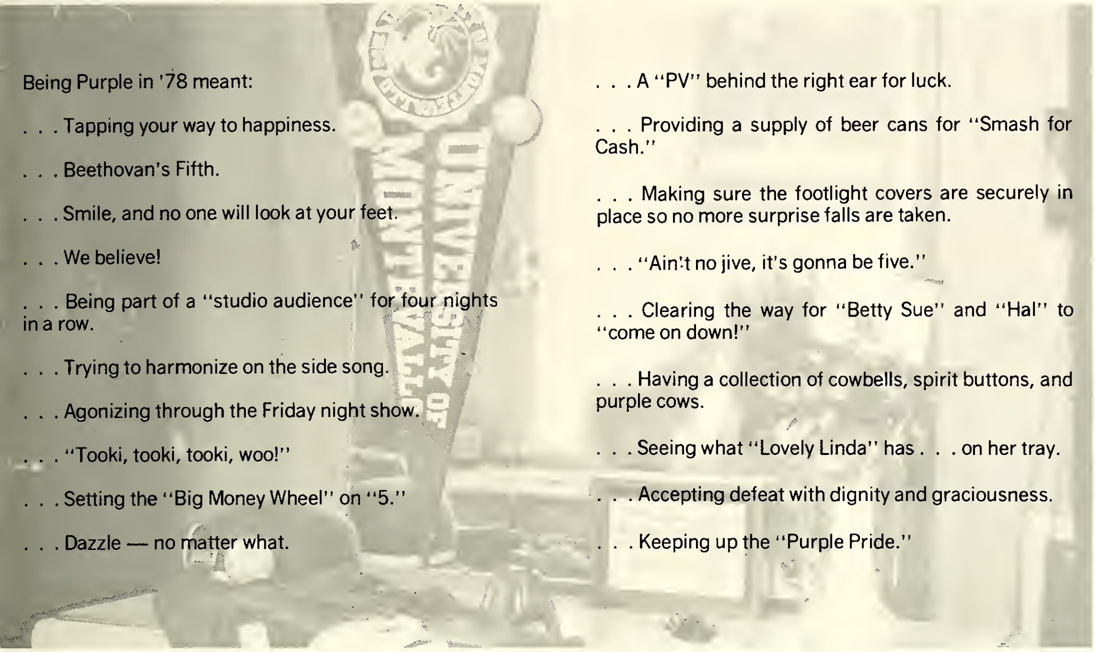
. . . "Glitter — it needs more glitter!"

. . . Taking no rain on Saturday night as a sign from above.

. . . Eating More beef.

. . . Experiencing the long-awaited, delirious, pandemonium of victory.

. . . Starting plans for "GV 2".



Being Purple in '78 meant:

. . . Tapping your way to happiness.

. . . Beethovan's Fifth.

. . . Smile, and no one will look at your feet.

. . . We believe!

. . . Being part of a "studio audience" for four nights in a row.

. . . Trying to harmonize on the side song.

. . . Agonizing through the Friday night show.

. . . "Tooki, tooki, tooki, woo!"

. . . Setting the "Big Money Wheel" on "5."

. . . Dazzle — no matter what.

. . . A "PV" behind the right ear for luck.

. . . Providing a supply of beer cans for "Smash for Cash."

. . . Making sure the footlight covers are securely in place so no more surprise falls are taken.

. . . "Ain't no jive, it's gonna be five."

. . . Clearing the way for "Betty Sue" and "Hal" to "come on down!"

. . . Having a collection of cowbells, spirit buttons, and purple cows.

. . . Seeing what "Lovely Linda" has . . . on her tray.

. . . Accepting defeat with dignity and graciousness.

. . . Keeping up the "Purple Pride."

TRADITION: OLD AND NEW

GOLD FLUNKIES: Front row: Cindy Haffner; Robin Lysinger, Assistant; Julee Knox, Head. 2nd row: Kathy Skinner, Donna Howard, Diana Donnenworth. 3rd row: Darlene Finley, Debbie Bryan, Barb Daniels. 4th row: Inez Thompson, Mary Yelle, Jennifer Heyward. 5th row: Susan Comerford, Sabine Wlodarski, Andrea Conwell. 6th row: Lisa Thomas, Pam Corley, Suzanne Byrd, Connie Medlock. 7th row: Sydney Smith, Saundra Johnson, Jane Hill. 7th row: Barbara Mann, Marion Chandler.

Underlying all activities, guiding all preparations, and present on all occasions is a sense of tradition that gives a special meaning to College Night for all those involved. Fifty-nine years worth of precedents and customs provided the formula for putting together College Night '78. But the growth and development of College Night is a continual process and this year's festivities contributed some innovations of its own. A women's basketball game, male cheerleaders, a College Night formal ball, and a kick-off luncheon on the day of opening performances were new additions to College Night tradition.

It has always been an amazing part of College Night that students start with merely two scripts, and in four weeks present two fully developed musical/plays that are performed before approximately four thousand people. But this year's students pulled off an even more incredible feat, for due to the lengthened break between semesters, preparations for the productions were completed in a period of only three instead of four weeks. Long nights were the norm instead of the exception as rehearsals of all kinds proceeded at break-neck speed, and sleep became a thing of the past for the tech crews as they raced to finish their part in the productions. It was three weeks of feverish activity and frantic effort, yet the time shortage also encouraged cooperation, teamwork, and an exciting intensity that grew into an explosion of "Saturday Night Fever" on the final day of festivities.

finding a place

One of the most important things about College Night is that it requires the help of so many different kinds of people. Its diverse and complex activities draw on the interests of students in all the fields of study and provide an opportunity to meet and work with a variety of different people. Involvement, then, is the key to the success of College Night both as a tradition and as a satisfying experience for the individual. There are dozens of ways to make a contribution, many more than appear on the surface. Just to name a few:

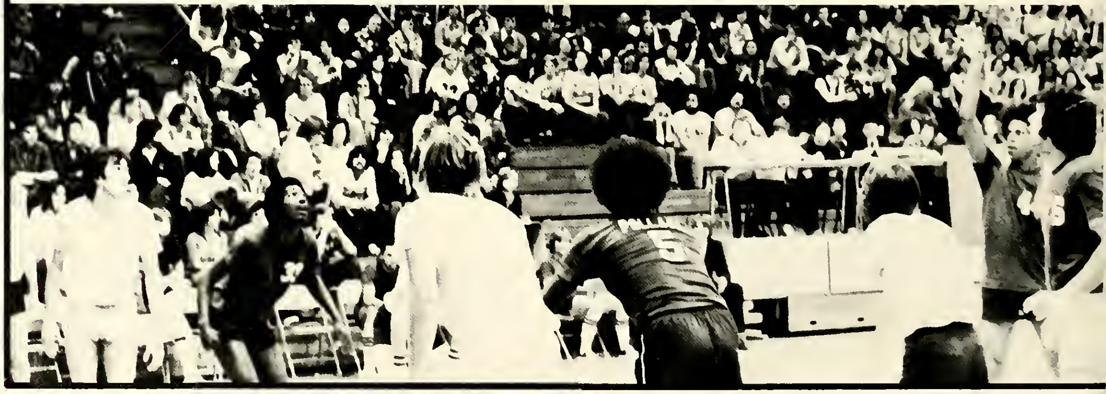
Artistically inclined students are always in demand for work on scenic art, the book, and publicity as well as on the designated art committee.

College Night athletic competition requires not only proficient football, basketball, and volleyball players, but also those with managerial skills.

For the more business-minded students, there is always a need for a business manager along with workers on the tickets and typing committees.

Musical talent is also a big must in order to supply musical composition, a functioning orchestra, and vocalists in the cast.

A combination of coordination, energy, and most of all, spirit, is necessary for cheerleaders and mascots, while a strong sense of rhythm is required of drummers.



Students with acting, dancing, or singing abilities are needed to comprise the cast, while those with a special knowledge of the theatre fill such positions as director and tech crew heads.

What may not be so obvious as these, but what is certainly true, is that students who feel that they possess no special talent can also participate in College Night!

A loud mouth and lots of spirit are all that's required to be a part of the cheering sections at pep rallies and athletic events.

The only things asked of Flunkies and Cowtails (as if this wasn't asking much!) is that they never get tired, never lose their spirit, and never are the first to leave an activity.

To round out the cast there's always a need for warm bodies to simply appear on stage without requiring any special skill.

Or consider the stage crew and the make-up and properties committees — no particular talents necessary for work with them, either.

In other words, dedication, energy, enthusiasm, and a willingness to work are the main qualifications to participate in College Night. Talented or not, College Night has a place for everyone — it's just a matter of finding it.

SMASH FOR CASH

A GOLD VICT IS IN THE

broadway illusions

All the absurdities of a dream and the distortions of a nightmare were the turning point in the Gold production, "Illusions of A Broadway Baby." After finishing a successful run on Broadway, a young actress plans to head for Hollywood to star in a film, but after glimpsing the false facade of glamour and the shallowness of Hollywood through her dreams, she stays in New York to marry the playwright of her successful shows. The set for this production was striking, with the general plot conveyed on the flats. The choreography and its execution in the disco and Oscar scenes was a big asset to the play. The costuming caused a great deal of favorable comments as well as the special effects such as the fog, the microphone reverb, and the living "oscar" used in the nightmare scene. The use of a synthesizer was an effective addition to the orchestration, while the use of signs (a la vaudeville) to indicate the dream sequences helped keep the tone light and playful. To help shorten the gaps between scenes, some scene changes were made with the curtain open, backed by transition music and action on stage. The character renderings were especially fine, filled with mannerisms and dialects that gave even minor roles distinction and humor.

In the role of Mr. Metro, head of Metro Studio, Billy Watts, above left, creates an exaggerated vision of fame, stardom, and immortality built merely on the promise of a role in one film.

Broadway baby, Lillia Parker, portrayed by Rhonda Dotson, is disillusioned to hear Screen test director Mr. Soquette, portrayed by Greg Tucker, plan a new and not exactly true public image to release to the press.

Aging actress Lucretia Alamour, played by Pam Robertson, above, is in full swing with one of her famous temper-tantrums. Faced at every turn by discouraging studio personnel, left and below left, Lillia's dream turns into a nightmare as she is subjected to laughter and ridicule, below.

THE GAME SHOW

Entitled simply, "The Game Show," the purple production was a humorous satire on television game shows, as well as a biting comment on the values of society. Combining and mixing elements from actual televised game shows, the purples' fictional "Bet Your Bottom Dollar" included such games as "Voice from the Past," "Smash for Cash," "Can He Tap Dance," and "Make it or Break It." The whole production was filled with imitative details of the high-flown, fast-paced, network shows: the cued audience responses, the gullible contestants, the smiling and scantily clad show girls, and the slick, fast-talking, wheeler-dealer host. A rather zany panel of bubble-blowing judges added to the general hilarity of the show while the bright catchy tunes accompanying the action helped unify the show and maintain audience interest.

At right, studio audience contestants Betty Sue (Lynn Piper) and Hal (Scot Copeland) steal the show from John Q. Public (Donald Hill) and Howie Baird (Darrell Revel).

The "Bet Your Bottom Dollar" Chorus line is in full swing, below.

The bright yellow and orange set featured a "Big Money Wheel" on the front of the judges stand, above.

The host of the show, Howie Baird, explains the rules for yet another round to a rather confused contestant, John Q. Public, left.

Mr. Public manages to make it through a round of "Can He Tap-dance?" with no major problems under the expertise guidance of tap-dance specialist, Sonny Ray (Stephen Hitt).

WE MADE IT TO THE TOP

Unity is what College Night is actually all about and the Friday night of performance week proved this to many people. A crisis occurred when the lead actor in the purple play became ill and unable to perform. Replacements were found, substitutions were made, and the show did go on. Pulled together by the threat of theatrical disaster, not only did the purples feel closer because of the concentration and teamwork required to face this problem, but it also created an environment of total cooperation and empathy between the two sides, for the Golds encouraged and supported the Purples in every way possible to help them through the evening's performance. After the finale rehearsal following the Friday night program, instead of forming two separate circles, the sides joined together in one circle to sing their Side songs. It was a time when everyone involved realized their common goal — to do everything in their power to make College Night as a whole the best possible.

For the Saturday night show the purple production was back to normal with all of its original cast. The feelings of closeness and support were still present from the night before, yet the competitive spirit was naturally heightened because of the judging process taking place that night. Tension and anxiety began to grow. The cheering sections were, as always, especially spirited on this night. Both casts were full of enthusiasm and both sides had a good performance. Excitement reached an almost unbearable peak during the finale proceedings. Finally the judges' decision was announced — it had been close, but the Gold side had won. Pandemonium broke loose on the stage as the delirium of winning that had been denied to the Golds for four years burst forth in full force. Remaining composed through the relentless wave of disappointment, the Purple side faced the Golds and joined in the applause. "We made it to the Top" was not only the announcement of victory for the Golds, but also a description of the new heights of unity reached within the College Night participants.

The spotlight focuses on the Gold spirit section as they raise their thumbs in hopeful anticipation of the evening's outcome, top right.

Purple leaders Doug Brom and Terri Drinkard, right, experience the stinging disappointment of defeat.

"Saturday night of College Night can be the most thrilling, totally unique evening of your life, or the most disappointing, almost agonizing, experience imaginable. But after being involved in it in some way, the feeling remains that win or lose, either way, it was worth it."

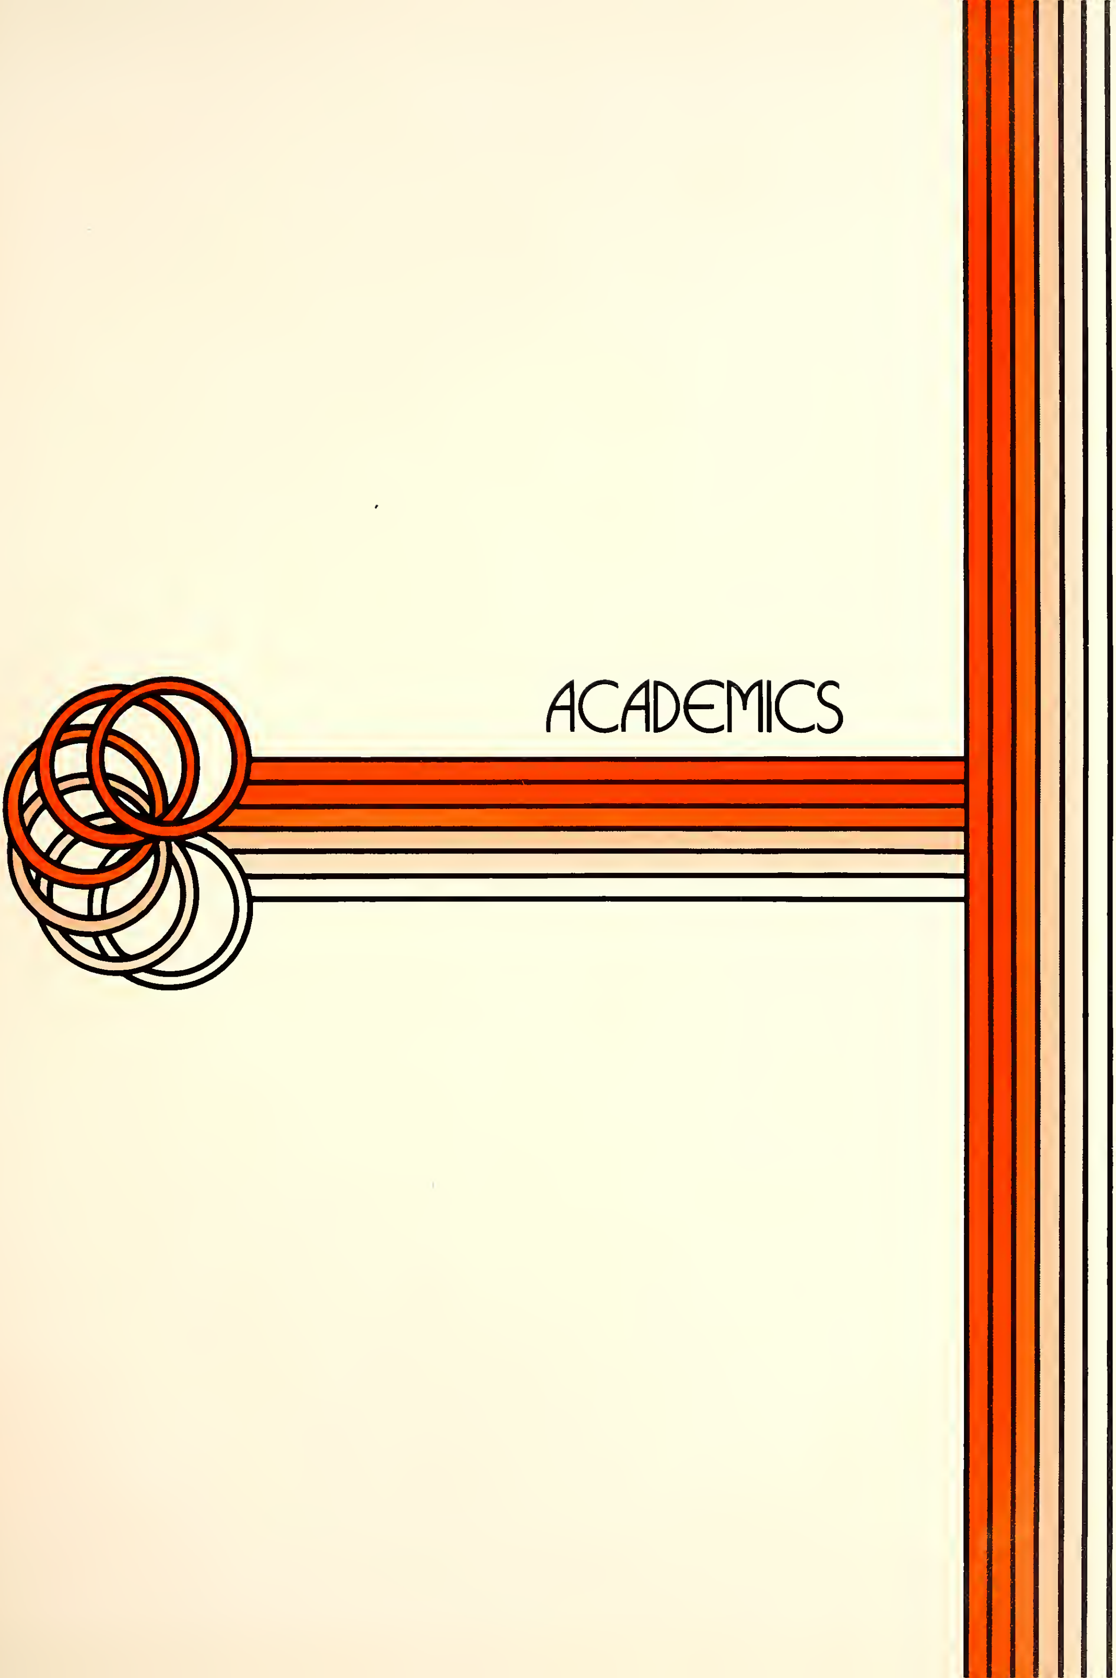
ACADEMICS



DR. JAMES F. VICKREY, JR.

The beginning of a new era for our university was initiated by Dr. Vickrey's arrival on campus as our new president. With him came fresh ideas, hopes and challenges for both faculty and students. A graduate of Auburn University, President Vickrey received his Doctorate at Florida State University and served that state's university system as Executive Assistant to the Chancellor and Director of Public Affairs. According to him, our's is the "best little public university in the state." Dr. Vickrey, welcome to UM.

ORGANIZATIONS

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

This year, the S.G.A. (like almost every organization on campus) has been caught up in the spirit of change in the direction of progress. There is a new willingness to work together with the faculty and administration to get things done. Some of these changes are signs of the time, some are long overdue. Not that the path to progress is entirely free of obstacles — too many committees, student apathy (still) . . ., but we're definitely on the way to making Montevallo what it ought to be.

The Alabamian, founded in 1925, has been the voice of the University of Montevallo students for over fifty years. The paper, located in the Tower, is funded by the student activity fee. This year, for the first time ever, the Alabamian editorial policy was set by a board of editors comprised of the editor, assistant editor, layout editor, trivia editor, and business manager. The board was established to aid the editor in matters of policy, editorial stand, and finances.

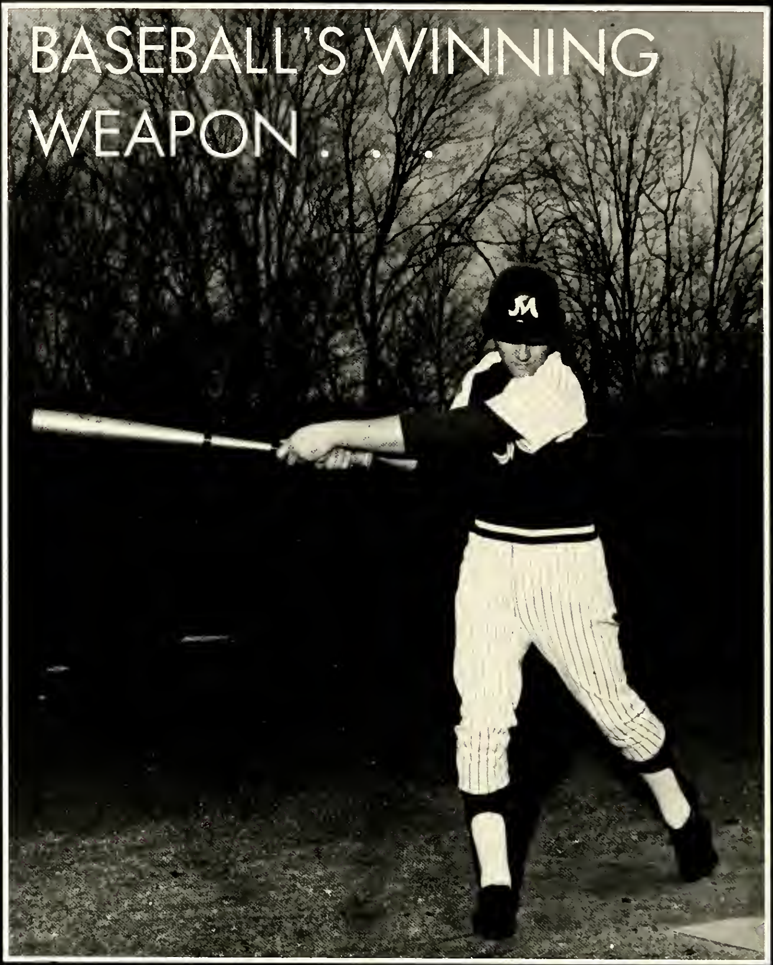
BASEBALL'S WINNING WEAPON . . .



...SLAMMING IT!

The 1977 Falcon Baseball Season was a very good one. The team worked well together and proved their ability by meeting each opponent with a winning spirit. The season's work paid off for four players who made All District, three who made All Conference, and two who received Honorable Mention.

Lee Frick

The 1977 Falcon Baseball season was the best in Montevallo's history with 36 wins and 21 losses. Part of this was due to four outstanding players: Kenny Wright, Billy Woodham, Randy Morrow, and Lee Frick. All four of these young men made All District. Billy, Lee, and Randy also made All Conference. Special congratulations to Kenny and Billy who also made All Area V and Honorable Mention All American.

This year's Basketball season got off to a good start when the Falcons won the first place trophy at the Montevallo Tip-Off Tournament. As the Falcons began their winning season, school spirit was running high with the help of the pep band and enthusiastic fans. Special thanks to President Vickrey and the Fans For Falcons Club for their continued support throughout the season.

Steve Wright — Captain and Leon Davis — Coach.

The Golf Team, made up of primarily new members, showed promise of a great year by winning the Champion Trophy at the Fall Classic sponsored by the University of North Alabama. As their season progressed, the school was not let down and each member continued to put forth that extra bit of effort needed to win.

OF THOUGHTS

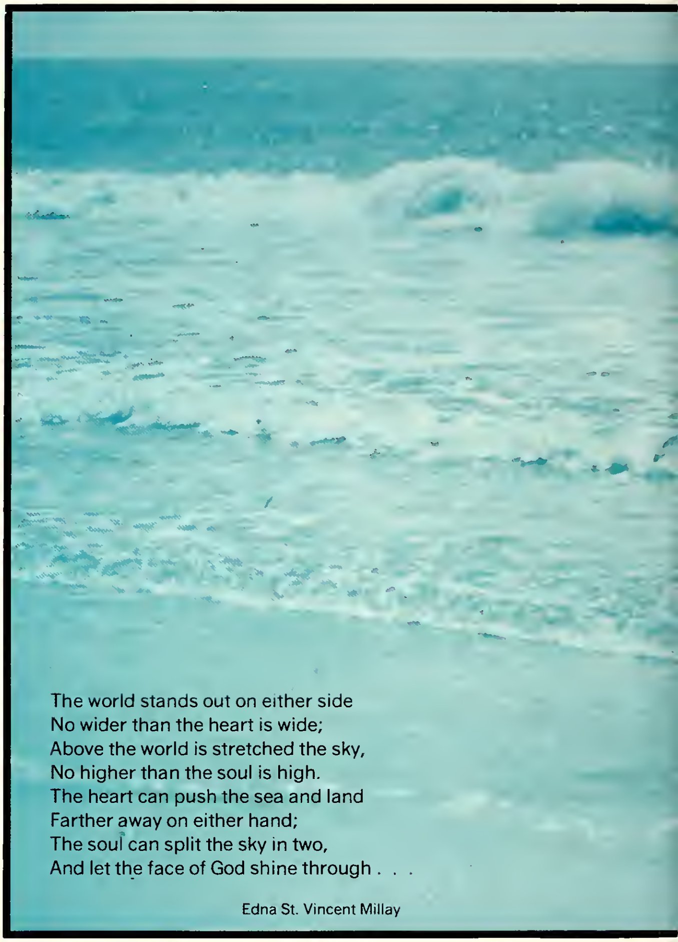
We can only reflect on those moments we want to keep forever . . . change always comes.



The world stands out on either side
No wider than the heart is wide;
Above the world is stretched the sky,
No higher than the soul is high.
The heart can push the sea and land
Farther away on either hand;
The soul can split the sky in two,
And let the face of God shine through . . .

Then God said, "Let there be light;"

Genesis 1:3
NASV

This year the Montage staff has attempted to capture in this book the spirit of involvement, growth, and change which was a part of the University. As Emerson said, "This time like all times is a very good one if we but know what to do with it." I believe we knew.

This book is a product of a great struggle by many people. The "many people" is what made the difference in this yearbook. When a group works hard and does their utmost, the results show it.

I would like to express my sincerest appreciation to Lynn Abernathy for being there anytime I needed help; to Charlie Cayley for all the all-night darkroom work; to my section editors for meeting their deadlines; to Patti Woodham for the advice and encouragement; and to the Publications Board for getting involved with the student publications.

Around the week of deadlines, times got pretty tough. I'd like to thank Maurice, Mary, Rhonda and my parents for putting up with me during those weeks.

As I'm finishing these written thoughts (the last page!!!), I have a feeling of accomplishment. Many dedicated staff members and I have burned the "midnight fluorescent lights" in the Tower, and we have done our utmost to meet deadlines and to create a book of which UM people can be proud. I hope as this yearbook is put on the shelf with all the other yearbooks that this one will stand out with a distinctive characteristic — maybe in the way it catches dust.

Looking back through my journal, I found that I had commented about more good days than bad days — that's the way it was. I have grown from this experience, and I feel now that every moment was worth it all.
